BOX STYLES

All flaps have the same length, and the two outer flaps (normally the lengthwise flaps) are one-half the container's width, so that they meet at the center of the box when folded. If the product requires a flat, even bottom surface, or the protection of two full layers, a fill-in pad can be placed between the two inner flaps. This is a highly efficient design for many applications. There is very little manufacturing waste. The RSC can be used for most products and is the most common box style.

REGULAR SLOTTED CONTAINER (RSC)

Same as Regular Slotted Container without one set of flaps.

HALF SLOTTED CONTAINER (HSC)

All flaps have the same length (the width of the box). When closed, the outer flaps come within one inch of complete overlap. This style is especially resistant to rough handling. Stacked on its bottom panel, the overlapping flaps provide added cushioning. Stacked on its side, the extra thickness provides added stacking strength.

FULL OVERLAP SLOTTED CONTAINER (FOL)

One piece of board is cut so that it provides a flat bottom, with flaps forming the sides and ends, and extensions of the side flaps meeting to form the top.

ONE PIECE FOLDER (OPF)

A single cut and scored piece features a fifth panel used as the closing flap, completely covering a side panel. The closed box has several layers of combined board on each end, providing stacking strength and protection for long articles of small diameter which might be damaged, or damage the box, if pushed through the ends.

FIVE PANEL FOLDER (FPF) OR HARNESS STYLE FIVE PANEL FOLDER

MEASURING BOX DIMENSIONS

Dimensions are given in the sequence of length, width and depth. Internationally, the words length, breadth and height may be used to express these dimensions. The dimensions of a box are described based on the opening of an assembled box, which can be located on the top or the side, depending on how it is to be filled. The opening of a box is a rectangle; that is, it has two sets of parallel sides. The longer of the two sides is considered its length, the shorter of the two sides is considered its width. The side perpendicular to length and width is considered the depth of the box.

END LOADING

TOP LOADING

Dimensions can be specified for either the inside or the outside of the box. Accurate inside dimensions must be determined to ensure the proper fit for the product being shipped or stored. At the same time, palletizing and distributing the boxes depends on the outside dimensions. The box manufacturer should be informed as to which dimension is most important to the customer.

FOLDING CARTON BOX STYLES

Examples of our most popular styles

Reverse Tuck

Ends tuck into box from opposite directions. Most economical layout due to tight nesting.

Tuck Top/Auto Bottom

Also called “crash-lock” bottom. Bottom pops into place automatically, increasing filling speeds in hand fulfillment operations.

Straight Tuck

Ends tuck into the box from the same direction. Presents a more finished appearance on the face.

Snap Lock Bottom

Also called a 1-2-3 bottom. Bottom is assembled with overlapping tuck flaps for additional strength.

Straight Tuck with Header

If a carton is to hang on a rack, the hanger extension requires the carton to be a straight tuck.

Infold Trays

Glued style that ships flat and then pops into a carton. Ideal for applications like food, stationery or clothing.

Seal End

Designed for use with high-speed automated filling equipment. Ends are glued by the machine during fulfillment.

Counter Top Display

Counter top displays are frequently designed as the shipper carton as well so they serve a dual purpose; they carry and display the product for you.

Tab Lock Tray with Lid

Inexpensive style to assemble as it requires no gluing. Ideal for presenting applications like sample or media kits.

Dispenser

Display and dispenser styles are numerous. This is a popular style because the carton can be loaded and reloaded from the top for continuous stocking.

Simplex

Economical 2-piece style. No gluing required, making it easy to assemble. Also stores and ships flat.
